REGION Douro/ Sub-region Corgo

TERROIR Quinta da Levandeira do Roncão is located on the right bank of the River Douro, in Vilarinho de Cotas, municipality of Alijó. It has a very hilly terrain, with slopes varying between 5% and 45%, an acid soil of schist origin, with a high degree of stoniness. It is located at an altitude of 500/600m, with a southern exposure. The vines receive sun throughout the day, which is reflected in the quality of their ripening. It benefits from a microclimate where an extensive mountain range protects the region from the influence of the Atlantic Ocean, offering a continental climate characterized by hot, dry summers and cold, rainy winters.

VINIFICATION Made with white traditional grape varieties from the Douro, carefully selected and harvested manually. During the alcoholic fermentation the must was fortified with the addition of strong wine brandy. Once the fermentation was completed, it was kept in stainless steel and wooden vats blended with white Ports from different years, resulting in a blend with an average age of 3 years.

TASTING NOTES It has a straw yellow color, with fresh aromas and nuances of fruit and flowers. In the mouth it is soft with a good balance between the freshness and complexity of aging in wooden vats.
